V. F. W. Dance In Mokena School Gym To-morrow Night

Diogenes- Look This Way

Mrs. Herbert Hilgendorf of Frankfort wants to thank the Foreign Mail Department in the New York office for the return of her money which was under a string around the package she was sending to her daughter in Bremen, Germany.

It went all the way to New York and was discovered there by an unknown honest employee.

On Nov. 15 Mrs. Hilgendorf left a package on the door step of the postmistress's home in Frankfort and because it was past closing time she tucked a dollar bill beneath the string with which the package was tied. The postmistress mailed it and did not see the money. Apparently it was not discovered in any other office in which it might have entered on its way to New York.

This week Mrs. Hilgendorf received a special delivery letter with the dollar bill and an explanation of its whereabouts. Much credit is due the post office department and employees.

MR. AND MRS. WM. MANCKE MARRIED SIXTY YEARS

The 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Mancke Sr., of Tinley Park was observed quietly Wednesday afternoon December 4 in their home in Tinley Park by their children, grandchildren and a few friends.

A beautiful bouquet of 60 red roses, the gift of the grand children and a beautiful wedding cake which graced the table formed the decorations. A novel arrangement of 60 half-dollar pieces, forming the numerals of "60" upon a plush covered plaque was presented to the honored couple by their children.

Mr. and Mrs. Mancke are in fairly good health. Mr. Mancke who underwent surgery this past summer has recovered very well and Mrs. Mancke takes care of her own house work each day.

Mrs. Mancke, 77, the former Estella Hendrickson, was born on a farm in Frankfort township, Oct. 27, 1869. Mr. Mancke, 87, was born on a farm half a mile east of Tinley Park June 1, 1859. When he was 8 years old his parents moved to a farm 2½ miles west of Tinley Park where he lived until he and his wife retired from farming 27 years ago and moved to their home in Tinley Park. They were married Dec. 4, 1886 in the Trinity Lutheran church north of Tinley Park.

To them were born one daughter and five sons all of whom are living. They are: Mrs. Jake Knapp of New Lenox; William of Tinley Park, Charles of Manhattan, Walter of Tinley Park and Frank, who is located at Bermuda in the employ of the U. S. Government. There are also 11 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren. The only break in the family was last year when their grandson suddenly was taken by death. The only member of the family not present was their son Frank and he sent a gift and a letter to his parents from Bermuda.

The many friends of this worthy couple wish them much happiness and good health in the years to come.

KILLED BY GUN THOUGHT UNLOADED

Homer and Lockport communities were greatly shocked when they learned of the death of the lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John West, which occurred on Saturday evening, Nov. 30, about 6 o'clock.

Leta and her brother, Wray were examining a revolver which was not supposed to be in working order, when it very unexpectedly went off, hitting Leta between the eyes and killing her instantly.

The parents were in Lockport shopping at the time of the accident, Wray telephoned for a doctor, but Mr. and Mrs. West returned before Dr. Roberts Lockport physician, reached the home.

Leta Margaret, who was twelve years old last Oct. 10, was a popular sixth grade pupil at Fairmont school. She was a member of Lockport Congregational Sunday school and 4th club.

Besides her parents and brother Wray, aged thirteen, she leaves a baby sister, Judy and her grandparents, Mrs. Emma West of Homer and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Preston of Joliet, also her great grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Redden of Joliet.

Tuesday noon the body was taken from the Goodale Funeral home to the Lockport Congregational church where it rested until 2:30 when Memorial services were conducted by the Rev. Milton Heitzman. Burial was made in Lockport cemetery.

The family is well and favorably known in Homer township, Mr. West having lived his entire life in Homer and Lockport. The heartfelt sympathy of both communities is extended them.

FINED $200 FOR FAILING TO FEED AND CARE FOR PETS

Late in the afternoon of November 12 a man called the Animal Welfare League in Chicago to report what he and a group of fellow hunters had found while on a hunting trip.

In back of a barn on the Ed. Radke farm, located on 104th Ave. and 17th St., these men came upon the badly decomposed carcass of a horse. They further explored the farm and found an abandoned house; in the house they found two dogs but did not find any signs of these dogs having food.

Early in the morning of November 13th, the next day, I thoroughly inspected the Radke premises and found two dogs confined in the house and one blind and badly frightened female dog chained to a dog house in back of the house. In a large barn, formerly used for cattle, I found three cats that were so frightened of people that I was unable to get close to them. I also found three ducks housed in a pen near the house. I checked with the neighbors and learned Radke came to his place about twice a week.

I returned to the farm on November 14, 15 and 16 and brought food for the animals. Upon again checking with the neighbors I learned Radke had not been to his place. In view of all the facts I gathered I decided to take out a warrant for Radke charging him with cruelty to animals.

When I served the warrant Radke admitted he fed the animals twice a week giving them enough food to last until his next visit. This was a violation of the Illinois Humane Laws for not providing an animal with proper food. Mr. Radke has moved to Chicago for the winter and thereby neglected the animals he left behind.

When Radke appeared in Harvey police court on November 26, Judge Lambert fined him $200 and cost for violation of the cruelty statutes. Upon payment of the court costs the fine was suspended and Radke was placed on probation for one year with the warning that any future violation would mean the $200 fine would have to be paid.

CHICAGO—Granny has gone modern, 200 grandmothers, many of whom were rouged and well-manicured, agreed when they attended the fifth annual convention of the National Grandmothers club here recently.The typical grandmother, they insisted, has traded her rock-ing chair and her knitting for a permanent wave and a job, and she even sips a cocktail now and then.Smart furs, bright dresses and feathered hats brought a touch of gaiety to the convention hall. One grandmother wore a purple dress, red hat and green and she referred to her white hair

as "platinum."

Stage Follies Show.

Highlight of the convention sessions was a variety show, "Now and Then," sometimes dubbed "Grandmothers Follies of 1946," which was staged by an all-grandmother cast.Main interest was centered on a strip tease performed by Mrs.
Collette Minton Collins and a hula number by Mrs. Bessie Simpson, a stout grandmother.
Mrs. Lula Cooper, 65, grandmother of five and booked as the "last of the red hot mamas," sang "I Want to Get a Man in My Arms.""Sometimes I think we're actually ahead of the times," insisted Mrs. Grace A. Gray of Mitchell, Ind., club secretary. To prove her contention that "life really begins at 60," Mrs. Gray has started raising race horses. At the convention session, however, she walked with a little difficulty — she had fallen off one of the horses the preceding week.

Has 17 Grandchildren.

As their identification badge, each of the club members wore a pin resembling an army marksmanship medal, with a bar for each grandchild. Mrs. Gray's pin has only two bars but the one worn by Mrs. Ella Godee, Chicago, hung nearly to her waist, one bar for each of her 17 grandchildren.

Many of the grandmothers are active in business, it was reported.

Mrs. Blanche Brown of Niagara Falls, N. Y., grandmother of four, owns a 60-bed tourist camp. Mrs.
Bertha D. Martin of Orlando, Fla., who has three grandchildren, is a book publisher, and Mrs. Bea Good, club president, owns four dance
bands.White House Again Opened to TouristsWASHINGTON. — For the first time since the war, the White House has been reopened to tourists. Agitation for the reopening has been noted since the war ended, and this fall wartime restrictions were removed from the avenues flanking the White House, permitting traffic to pass freely.Tourists are permitted to browse around the ground and main floors of the building. On the first level are rooms exhibiting old china, furniture pieces and books. The main floor consists of the historic East room with the huge crystal chandeliers, the state dining room and the "famous three" — the Green,
Blue and Red rooms.Decision to reopen the White House was welcomed especially by operators of commercial sightseeing establishments."Why, we can sell a tour just on the strength of getting them in the White House," a guide explained.U. N. HEARS HER PEACE PLEA . . . Mrs. Stanley Schnelle, Gold Star mother of Olivia, Minn., had a young son who, at only 18, met his death on Okinawa after fighting in several major Pacific battles. In her grief for her lost son and for other "tired, weary boys" killed in World War II, Mrs. Schnelle wrote a plea for world peace to Francis Cardinal Spellman. The letter was read to U. N. delegates by Secretary of State Byrnes.

Shortages Extend to Girls' Names

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — Postwar shortages have extended even to girls' first names, the father of a Liverpool, N. Y., baby girl insisted in returning a name form to the county unfilled.In an accompanying letter to Bernard M. Mitchell, county registrar of vital statistics, the father wrote:
"We have not named the child yet and have no reason for believing we will do so soon. The fact is wespent some time getting a name.
The child turned out to be a girl and we could not use the name we spent so much trouble getting.
Times being what they are, shortages of everything — it will be impossible to get a name within a reasonable time."Mitchell said it was the first time a supplemental name form had been returned without the necessary information.Vaccinate Now to Save Hog ProfitsBe Prepared Against Hog Cholera Outbreak

By W. J. DRYDEN

The ideal time to vaccinate young pigs for cholera is about two weeks after they have been weaned. There is no "panacea" for hog cholera, once it strikes. The solution is preventive vaccination before an outbreak occurs.Hog cholera still causes an average annual loss of about 30 million dollars in the United States. Two million dollars, above what is now spent, for hog cholera virus and anti-hog cholera serum would wipe out this loss, if followed by approved methods of sanitation.It has been thoroughly demonstrated that the proper inoculation of healthy swine with potent hog cholera virus and anti-hog choleraThis youngster can now have life immunity against hog cholera.serum will result in a relatively solid and lasting immunity. This is the so-called double treatment—injection of serum in one place and the virus in another.Because between 50 and 60 pigs can be vaccinated after weaning age, for the value of one market hog, and as cholera can wipe out an unvaccinated herd over night, no hog raiser can afford to let his herd remain unvaccinated.KNOW YOUR BREED SouthdownsSouthdown ram, good producer of wool and meat.Southdown sheep are an ideal mutton breed, possessing the ideal proportions and meat of finest texture. They are noted for their fattening qualities, becoming well finished at an early age and at a weight of between 60 and 70 pounds.They are one of the oldest known breeds, hence have long been established in type. The Southdown often are crossed with other breeds to produce superior lamb carcasses.Good type mature rams in breeding condition weigh from 165 to 220 pounds and ewes from 135 to 160 pounds.Southdowns shear from five to eight pounds from a 12 months' wool growth.Healthy Calves Will Grow to Good CowsEight cardinal points to practice in order to bring calves along so that they may develop into good milkers are given by the University of Wisconsin. These sound measures are:Get rid of germs. Keep germs out of calf's body. Keep calf's resistance high. Clean calf pens every day.
Keep feeding utensils clean. Provide fresh air, but no drafts. Disinfect navel soon after birth. Provide nutritious rations daily.Elimination of Winter Smut in Seed BarleyA large part of barley smut can be eliminated in the 1947 crop by treating the barley seed used for planting this fall, says C. A. Helm, Missouri college of agriculture. Covered smut and black loose smut can be eliminated by seed treatment. The brown loose smut cannot be controlled. Seed may be treated with formalin, copper carbonate or ceresan. By eliminating two of the three smuts, losses will be cut.

Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

So Easy. No Cooking. Saves Dollars.

No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, is hard to beat, for real results.Make a syrup by stirring 4 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it.
Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.Then put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup.
This gives you a full pint of really splendid cough relief—about four times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it. It never spoils.You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and lets you sleep.Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations.
Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

WIDOWS OVER AGE 65 GET MONTHLY BENEFITS

Most widows attaining the age of 65 whose husbands had died after December 31, 1939 and were fully insured under the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance system and who received a lump sum payment may be eligible for monthly benefit checks for the rest of their lives, unless they have remarried. Mr. G. A. McCollum, Manager of the Joliet district office at 58 North Chicago Street, Joliet, said. These widows must file claims, however, to receive payments and should contact the nearest Social Security Administration office for correct information.

Despite information furnished at the husband's death, many widows do not understand they may receive monthly benefits when they reach age 65.

Although efforts have been made to contact the widow in these cases, very often she has moved and cannot be located. "Only this week a widow came into our office," Mr. McCollum said, "and learned that she had lost several months payments because she had delayed filing."

Telephone Company Gives Reasons For Rate Increases

Increases in telephone rates which it declares are necessary because of higher operating costs and lowered earnings were requested by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company in a petition filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield Tuesday Dec. 3.

In Mokena, monthly telephone rates would be increased 25 cents for rural residence, 4-party residence, 2-party residence, and rural business service; and 50 cents for individual residence, 2-party business and individual business service.

Rates on long distance calls going outside Illinois are not affected. Rates on out-of-town calls between Illinois points would be increased slightly. On short distance toll calls within Illinois increases also apply. The standard 3-minute initial talking period which now applies on calls costing 30 cents or more, would apply on calls taking a 15c or higher rate. The 5-minute initial talking period will apply on calls taking the 10c toll rate, which would be the lowest standard rate for any toll call.

A feature of the new rates provides a new "Metropolitan Service" offered on an optional basis to 1-party business and 1-party and 2-party residence subscribers. It enlarges their local unlimited-calling area, and also entitles them to unit charges below standard toll rates on calls to Chicago and to many points in the Chicago suburban area. This new service, offered for a rate somewhat higher than the new local rates, will afford economies for customers who make frequent toll calls.

The new rates would increase the company's income from intrastate telephone service in Illinois by about 16 percent on the average, but increases in bills to individual subscribers would vary above or below this average. Over 40 percent of the increases, the petition said, will be paid as additional taxes to governmental bodies.

G. K. McCorkle, president of the company, pointed out in the petition that his company has delayed asking for rate increases as long as possible. "It presents them now," he said, "only after the actual operating results demonstrate the clear need for that action and its urgency."

With payroll costs up 126 percent and total operating costs 80 percent, income has risen only 59 percent, Mr. McCorkle stated, noting that the company's earnings after the end of this year will be at the lowest rate in its 65-year history.

The company points out that its service extension and improvement and the growth of the state, are at an unrequited level. It must restore the margins of plant used by urgent needs of war.

For these purposes, the Company will need about $170,000,000 of new investment funds during the 5-year period from 1946 to 1950, and that its expenditures for gross construction will total $50,000,000 this year and $90,000,000 next year. Unless it can get rate increases to raise the additional revenue needed, the company said it will be unable to "efficiently to operate its plant or to secure the capital necessary to finance the service improvement and extension program facing it."

For the somewhat higher rate the new optional "Metropolitan Service" described above will give the Mokena residence and business subscribers to this service unlimited local calling privileges to telephones in Mokena, Frankfort, New Lenox, Orland, Tinley Park, Homewood, Blue Island, Chicago Hgts.

W. F. Wiedemann, manager, commenting on his Company's filing in Springfield, stated here, "We believe our customers know from their own experience with rising costs what our expense problems are. I think they will understand the need for the moderate increases asked."

WORLD PASSPORTS TO SIMPLIFY INTERNET TRAVEL

The need for a system of world pass ports to simplify international travel thru the elimination of passports, visas, and related documents, was high lighted at a recent Annual Convention of the American Automobile Association in San Francisco, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club.

"The documents and red tape now involved in crossing from one country to the other are anachronisms that have no place in the world of today," Mr. Hayes declared.

"World passports, together with world registration plates and world driving licenses, would provide tremendous impetus for international travel."

The Chicago Motor Club through the AAA and in cooperation with international motor club organizations, is sponsoring the lifting of all barriers to international travel as a step that would be a major contribution toward world understanding and peace.

MORE DANGER FOR THE HUNTED . . . A radically new type shot-shell with an expanding cup wad that completely seals the entire force of the powder behind the shot pellets has been introduced for limited use by hunters for the first time. Upper left shows leakage of old type. Upper right, the new type shows no leakage. These photos were made at three one-millionths of a second. Center, shows the new expanding-cup wad, preceded by filler wads dropping away as the short charge heads for target. Lower photo shows how the speed pictures were taken.

TEEN-AGERS STAGE AIR SHOWS . . . Teen-agers are producing their own radio shows and competing successfully with professionals. Outstanding example is the ABC Junior Junction, being produced in Chicago. Dick York, 17, acts as mayor of Junior Junction, and plans the show. Nor do they lack for vocal talent. Tony Trankina, 17, and Lola Ameche, 18, furnish the jive tunes the hep-cats howl for.

PLAN ATOMIC EDUCATION . . . Prof. Albert Einstein and seven other leading scientists are pictured as they met to formulate a joint appeal for public subscription of one million dollars to finance educational campaign on the social implications of atomic energy. Left to right, front: H. C. Urey, Professor Einstein and Selig Hecht. Rear, left to right: L. S. Szilard, Hans A. Bethe, T. R. Hogness and P. M. Morse. Questions and Answers

Q. I served aboard the heavy cruiser USS Louisville through the war and we had a book published called "Man of War" and I have not received my copy and the ship has been decommissioned. Could you tell me where I could write concerning this book?—N. E. H., Cloquet, Minn.

A. These are not official navy publications and many such books were published by individual ships. In many cases the books were not published until after the war was over, in some cases probably never published at all. However, the navy is attempting to answer all inquiries if possible. Write to Lieut. F. M. Granger, Ship Section, Office of Public Information, Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C., and he will attempt to find out about it. If you know of any of your friends who have received a copy of the book, try and obtain the name of the printer from your friend and inform Lieutenant Granger.

Q. I am writing to see if I can find out why I am not eligible for an allotment from the army. I have a son in the service who volunteered March 11, 1945, and he filled out the papers for an allotment. We got a batch of papers to fill out, and we did so. Then we got another batch to fill out, which I did, and then I got a letter telling me I was not eligible for allotment. Will you please tell me why?—Mrs. D. W., Baldwin, Miss.

A. The mere fact of parenthood does not entitle you to an allotment. You must be dependent upon your son for support. If the letter telling of your ineligibility did not state the reason, suggest you write to the address from whence the letter came and inquire as to the reason.

Q. I became ill while working for the government during the war. I am still unable to work. Am I entitled to any benefits other than my retirement fund? I have been advised that I could attend rehabilitation school. Is this true?—L. P., Mocksville, N. C.

A. If you are not a veteran of the armed services, I know of no other benefits except your retirement fund. The rehabilitation division of the department of labor has established advisory centers to help both handicapped civilians and veterans, but they do not have any benefits. If there is such a center near you, you might apply to them.

Q. My pal was buried in U. S. Cemetery Andilly in France. Could you please give me the location, naming some of the surrounding towns and nearest post office. Is there a town in France called Andilly?—W. F. A., Washington, Iowa.

A. Yes, there is a town called Andilly and the nearest large town is Nancy. The cemetery is 15 miles northwest of Nancy.

Q. My son was killed in action on Saipan June 26, 1944. He never received a furlough and had only two and a half months training. He was with the 4th marine division. Can I find out why he did not get to come home and is there any way of finding out the cause of his death?—Mrs. G. O., Newburgh, Ind.

A. Write to the Officer in Charge, Casualty Section, Headquarters U. S. Marine Corps, Washington 25, D. C., giving your son's full name, rank, serial number and all information concerning his induction and activities of which you have knowledge.

A giant sequoia tree lived to be about 1,335 years old on the west coast of the United States, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Part of its trunk is kept in the Natural History Museum in South Kensington London.

Mechanized Linen Industry

Linen manufacture in Ireland was long a cottage industry. It was not until 1823 that the first successful power-driven flax spinning mill was set up in Belfast, after which rapid expansion of the industry began.

Pork Spoilage

Cold pork will rarely spoil, but mild fall days which raise the air temperatures above 40 degrees speed up the growth of spoilage germs that are on and in pork. Warm pork spoils.

CHAPTER I

The heat in town had been intense, and Julia McFarlane rolled the station-wagon under the ivy covered porte-cochere gratefully.

The big old house would be cool. It was always cool, the solid brick walls built over a century since shutting out the sun with aloof dignity. Julia jerked off her hat before she opened the door and slid out of the coat of her smart gray suit. She dropped the hat and coat on a chair and was pushing the heavy, moist auburn hair off her forehead when a yell came down the curving staircase. A young yell.

"Dooley, is that you?" Julia sighed. She was so tired. It was five o'clock, and she had had no lunch. She had spent hours in an airless office, growing more furious by the moment, and then she had argued for another hour with a young government representative who quoted regulations, almost smacking his lips over them. To her desperate plea that there had to be more wiring for power and pumping on Buzzard's Hill, that there had to be more fence if they were to raise hams and bacon for the army, he had smiled a maddeningly superior smile.

To his smug vision all this had spelled wire—copper wire, steel wire—and wire was not to be surrendered, even to a handsome woman in a stylish hat. So Julia had come back to the farm, wrung out and exasperated, and now here was Jill yelling from upstairs.

"Dooley, come up here right away!"

Julia went up the stairs slowly. In the bright little room at the end of the hall Jill was standing on a stool before a looking-glass, her slim legs hidden in folds of white jersey, her face full of woe.

"It's all crooked!" she wailed. "They stretched it when they cleaned it, and it's all in scallops. It looks like the devil. What am I going to do?"

Julia dropped on the bed and looked at her child. Jill's hair was lighter than her own, taffy and sunlight and wild curling mischief, where Julia's had darkened to the hue of old cherry wood and lay back sleekly under a brush. Jill's eyes were darker, too, almost black under striking, arrogant brows; direct, demanding eyes, impatient, with little compromise in them.

"What do you want to do, Jill? Cut the hem off and even it?"

"I haven't got time. It's yards around the bottom, though it does hang so straight. Would it look awful, Dooley, if we cut off the worst places and hemmed it? It has to be right, it simply has to."

"What cooks? Something terribly special?"

"Frightfully special." Jill jerked angrily at the stubborn folds. "It's Spang. And the club dance. He has a three-day pass. He's coming on the bus."

"Do I know Spang? He sounds like some kind of canned dog-rat."

Julia Worries About Her Son

Would Spang be outraged by an uneven hemline?

"Don't make gags, Dooley, you're not the type. Handsome dignity is your line. No, you don't know Spang. He's a turret instructor right now, down at Ric's Field. I met him when I went down last week to see Ric. He's a lieutenant and a flier, but right now he's T.S.—technical to you, Dooley."

"But he wasn't christened Spang, surely—the font would have fallen down."

"Dooley, I ask you! His name is Spencer, and he hates it because he doesn't like some uncle or other. He won't look at my dress, but all the females on the prow will cut their eyes down, and I'll get an inferiority complex. And this is important!"

"Is it?" Julia was gentle. "All right, turn around. But I refuse to guarantee results. Remember, I'm a pig-woman, not a couturiere. Is Ric coming with your Spang?"

Jill puckered her brow. "Mother, Ric's a private. Just a plain Joe, and a casual at that. He couldn't get a pass home unless he bought one from somebody, and he says they've hiked the price now till it isn't worth it."

"But—do you mean that he came home last time on some other man's pass?" Julia spoke between pins, sharply.

"Of course. Unless it was an emergency he wouldn't rate a pass. They might want to ship him out any minute."

"But that was a foolish and risky thing to do when he's trying to get into officer's school!"

"Oh, they organize things, Ric says—get some other Joe to answer for them at roll-call or something. Jill turned slowly on her toes.

"I don't like it," Julia said sternly. "I won't have Ric jeopardizing his chances. You should have told me before."

"Oh, Mother, you know how much attention Ric pays to maternal admonition! You only had one dutiful child—me."

"Stand still, or I'll never get this right." She was so tired that her legs quivered and her eyes blurred. And now worry was spinning like a dentist's drill in her brain. For now she was beginning to know what before had been only a nagging fear, a motherly apprehension. Now she knew that the thing she hated had not died, had not removed itself from her life. It was going on. Richard, her son, born in loneliness and torment—Richard was going on being another mad and reckless McFarlane, irresponsible, not to be believed.

You could have spared me this, God, she was thinking. I've had so much and I've tried to be patient, I've tried to do my best.

Aloud she said, "That gets it, I think. But it will probably sag somewhere else. That heavy stuff does."

Jill pulled the dress over her head and dropped on the stool, her naked arms round and virginal and sweet.

"Will you tack it up for me, Dooley? I've got to do my nails and press my suit, and there's a spot on the toe of one of my sandals where somebody stepped on me. Oh, I forgot to tell you, I asked Spang to stay here. He hasn't any family at all. I fixed the bed be-

"It's all crooked!" she wailed. cause Mamie was pouty. I could only one find one hemstitched sheet, so I put a plain one under."

"Will Spang be here to dinner? If he will, you'll have to set the table. I'll fix your dress, but then I have to talk over some things with Foster and your grandfather."

"John I. rode up to mark posts in the woodlot," Jill said. "Foster had to help him on the horse, and that made him furious. He's bound to break a hip some day, and then you and I will have a lovely life."

"But he'll die if he stops wanting to do things for himself. He really doesn't believe that he's eighty. He thinks that's something somebody made up."

"You're a pet to fix the dress, Dooley my love. But Spang is worth it, he is definitely. Maybe he's the one. About time! Here I am, crowding twenty-seven and already getting a maiden look around the chin."

"Don't be ridiculous. You look about eighteen. Don't forget about the table. Mamie's been busy all day."

Jill Mustn't Be An Army Wife

"Oh, Spang's bus won't be here till eight. I'll give him sandwiches and beer. Anyway, Mamie likes soldiers, and all the boys want a soft chair to sprawl in and a hot tub. They stand up all day, or sit on a hot curb, and they can't even lie down on their cots till night, Ric told me."

In her own room, dim and cool and serene, and with the branches of the huge old trees rustling close to the windows, Julia shed the regimentals of a career woman, relaxed in the tub, and put on soft cotton slacks. Later she'd have to get into the denim and boots that were her farm uniform; she'd have to tell Foster, who ran the place, that there would be no more copper wire and no more fence till the government gave her a priority, and heaven only knew when that would be.

She would have to tell her father-in-law, too, old John I. McFarlane, and he would fume angrily and impatiently for hours, to any one who would listen.

Working on Jill's dress, she hoped this young lieutenant would not be a disappointment, but all the while she nursed the secret wish that he would prove to be only another passing fancy, moving on as so many other lads had moved on, out of Jill's life.

To be an army wife—she did not want that for Jill. She wanted to save her child from that heartburning, that dreary waiting, the endless nights, the torturing silences that she herself remembered. And for her the wretchedness had never ended. There had been no finale, no period, no yellow telegram, no shock of grief—there had been nothing. Now, after twenty-five years, there was still nothing.

But in these days, with all the young men in service, a girl, even as pretty and desirable a girl as Jill, had little choice. The world was swiftly turning to a confused and dismal place.

She had told herself so many times, when Jill and young Richard were small and everything was very grim for her, that no child of hers should ever live through what she herself was living through. She had worked so hard: she had even done rough work with her own hands to build up this old farm. She had fought drouth and animal epidemics and insects and discouragement, to make a richer, kinder life for Ric and Jill. And she had succeeded. She looked through the window at the white fences marching over the lush green of the fields of Buzzard's Hill, and she knew that she had succeeded.

Her father-in-law had helped. She gave him his due in all loyalty. He had been a rock to lean upon, he had been a pillar—a fiery pillar, but steadfast. Through all the strange years when no word had come from Richard, her husband, when there had been only silence as baffling as the hollow sky, as deep as the sea, old John I. had stood by her—through the grim times and good times. She had lived through it, but she would fight to save Jill from a life like that.

She heard the clump of John I.'s boots presently, heard him yelling something into the telephone. All the McFarlanes yelled, even Jill. There was so much in them that was alive and in a ferment. Patience had been left out of them. It was as if they had a yeast brew instead of blood in their veins.

Richard, whom she had married, had yelled, too. Up three flights in that little walk-up flat in Washington—why must she think of that just now? Why couldn't she make herself forget, finally and forever? Last year she had determined to forget, and the year before. It irritated her that she, a strong woman, was not strong enough to conquer this thing that haunted her.

The dress finished, she laid it carefully across Jill's bed and got into the faded shirt, the rough clothes that went with being a pig-woman. She tied her hair up in a bandana and went downstairs.

A Sow Shows Its Teeth

John I. McFarlane—thin, mustached, with small hands and feet, and bright, hot, black eyes—was sitting on the side porch cutting tobacco into a newspaper spread across his knees. He looked up as alertly as a robin, and said, "Hello, you back?"

"An hour ago," Julia sat down. The old man snapped his knife shut, slid the tobacco into a red tin and put the tin in his hip pocket. "Bet you forgot my bottle of biters?"

"I did not. It's in the kitchen with the groceries."

"I'd better rescue it, then, before Mamie rubs it on her rheumatism. Last time you brought me some she used it to kill mites on a duck. Well, I marked about two hundred posts."

"No use, John I. They won't give us priority for any more fence."

He drew his white brows together angrily. "What do they expect us to do? Teach hogs not to cross a chalk line?"

"No more wire, no more copper, no more steel. It's war, John I. But it makes it tough for the pig business. Would you be interested in growing cucumbers or peanuts or something?"

"I would not! Pickles give me the hives, and what good are peanuts when there aren't any more county fairs or circuses?"

"They use the oil for something. I forget what. Did you tell Foster to shut up your prize sow? She ought to bring a good litter."

"I shut her up myself. She's a cagy female. She bit me, and I hit her with the pitchfork before I thought, but she wasn't hurt any. What's wrong with you, Dooley? You look shot, and you've got circles under your eyes."

PAUL ADMONISHES THE CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 11:20-27; Romans 13:13, 14; Ephesians 5:18-21.
MEMORY SELECTION—Let us walk honestly, as in the day.—Romans 13:13.

Temperance is readily taught from the epistles of Paul for he was constantly moved by the Holy Spirit to exhort the churches and individual Christians to a careful and worthy walk before God.

In doing so he was not afraid to speak plainly about the use of intoxicants. Perhaps his brethren in the ministry today should consider him and take courage.

Our lesson is a temperance lesson, and since some twist that word "temperance" to fit almost any kind of indulgence, we should like to quote a careful evaluation of it by Dr. W. R. White:

"Temperance is a seriously misunderstood word. The best definition we know defines it as abstaining from that which is harmful, and using moderately that which is legitimate. We would not advise a man to be moderate in teasing a rattle-snake. We would not tell him that it is all right to steal, lie or commit adultery just so he is temperate about it. We would not tell a man to use dope moderately. . . . We could tell a man to be moderate about eating meat or any other wholesome thing."

The only way to be temperate about liquor is to let it alone!

I. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Church (I Cor. 11:20-27).

There were a number of disorderly things about the Corinthian church which needed correction. One of these concerned the Lord's Supper. A time which should have given them a blessed unity in fellowship and love had become just the opposite.

It was their custom to eat a so-called love feast before the sacrament, and instead of making it a time of loving and sharing, the rich ate their sumptuous meals and let a poor brother gnaw on a crust of bread.

Then feasting led, as it so often does, to excesses. Some became drunken on the wine and even partook of the Lord's Supper while intoxicated.

We are not so much concerned with the Lord's Supper in this lesson as we are with the behavior of those who attended. Think of coming to the holy table drunk! It seems impossible, and yet it happened.

Do we not still let the poor in our midst shift pretty well for themselves? The rich flaunt their affluence and let the poor get along on their crust of bread. The church needs to renew its scriptural appreciation of what fellowship and communion really means.

II. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Community (Rom. 13:13, 14).

This chapter of the epistle to the Romans concerns the right behavior of the believer in his civic relationships. He is a citizen of heaven, but he is also a citizen of the community in which he lives.

The use of intoxicants which a generation ago was a shameful thing is now generally accepted. The home in which liquor was served was a disgrace; now "cocktail" is one of the first words children learn.

What is the explanation? Is liquor any less destructive and demoralizing? Certainly not! Is it then true that people are more candid and open about what they do? No, it is rather that moral standards have slipped to the point where they are no longer ashamed when they should be, if they thought straight!

Along with the liquor go all the things enumerated in verse 13. Oh, the awful depth of sex degradation, of plain ordinary indecency and dishonesty, of strife and envy. It is not a nice picture, but it is true.

The right way is found in verse 14. It was reading these two verses in his mother's open Bible that led Augustine to Christ. He saw and took the right way. Will others do likewise?

III. The Wrong Way and the Right Way—in the Heart (Eph. 5:18-21).

This is a personal matter. The man or woman who finds satisfaction in wine wants the overpowering power of the narcotic influence to take away the sense of responsibility for life. It is a weak and hopeless way to avoid facing reality.

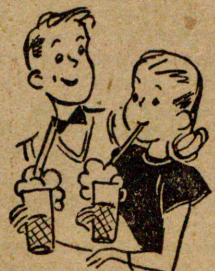

The right way is to let the Holy Spirit take full control of the heart and life. This is to be an experience of complete surrender, being "filled with the Spirit."

Does life then become drab and uninteresting? No, indeed! For the first time you will be really joyful.

That inevitably leads to thankfulness, a grace too little known and practiced. It is for all things at all times. Do not overlook that fact. Then too there will be a delightful attitude of consideration and respect for one another (v. 21) and of devotion to God.

"BILL" ERICKSON TAKES OFFICE AS CTY. BOARD PRESIDENT

Amid the plaudits of the overflow crowd that gathered in the Cook County Commissioners' chambers Monday noon at the County building, Commissioner Wm. N. Erickson, of Evanston, was inducted into the office of President of the Board, the first Republican president of this body in 32 years. The occasion was marked by the presence of many dignitaries who came to offer congratulatory messages and words of encouragement. Outstanding among these were Senator C. Wayland Brooks and Governor Dwight P. Green. Both expressed their elation over the fact that Republicans had captured the majority of County offices and predicted that the new office holders would be a credit to the citizens of Cook county.

Governor Green stated that Commissioner Erickson was well qualified for his office and he commended Commissioners Busse, Miller, Nixon and Mackler for "exceptionally good service to the people of Cook County."

Senator Brooks reminded President Erickson that he held the most important position in the county inasmuch as there were four million people over which his office had jurisdiction. However he told his listeners that they need have no fear concerning Commissioner Erickson's ability to handle the job. After his induction into office by his predecessor, Clayton F. Smith, President Erickson pledged himself to the following program:

1. Full cooperation with all members of the County Board, whether Democrats or Republicans.

2. Make the efficiency and service facilities of the Cook County hospital match the highest standards maintained by the medical personnel.

3. Institute new methods and new thought at Oak Forest.

4. Full cooperation between County, Institutions, Cook County Bureau of Public Welfare and the Illinois Public Aid Commission.

5. To install efficient business like methods in every department of the Cook County Government and the Forest Preserve District.

6. Make a careful study of each pay roll with a view to the economical and efficient operation of the county as well as to the economic needs of the employees.

7. To produce efficient governmental results without extravagance.

8. As liquor control commissioner of the county, to enforce all laws pertaining to the 328 taverns in unincorporated territory.

9. Revise and revitalize the Cook County highway program.

10. Give adequate police protection to visitors in the Forest Preserves.

Other dignitaries introduced at the ceremonies which were presided over by Judge Wm. V. Brothers were Lt. Gov. Hugh Cross, Senator Arthur Bidwill, John Leonard East, Werner Schroeder, States Attorney Wm. Touhy, Russel Root, Alan Ashcraft and Judge Edwin Robson.

ARMY SEEKING TO LOCATE FORMER AIR FORCE PERSONNEL

Chanute Field, Ill.—In an effort to obtain the latest addresses of approximately 2,500,000 former Army Air Forces personnel AAF headquarters has distributed 15,000,000 postcards throughout the United States.

The Civil Air Patrol and the Boy Scouts of America have distributed the cards to colleges, high schools, theaters, department stores, drug stores, and other places where former AAF men and women can obtain them conveniently.

General Spaatz, commanding general of the AAF, explained that up to date addresses of all former AAF veterans were desired so all former personnel could be kept informed of the latest developments and plans of the Air Reserve program. The huge distribution, known as "Operation Roger", was completed within a few weeks.

Each card bears the following message from Gen. Spaatz:

"To All former members of the Army Air Force: Now that you are back in civilian clothes, renewing old friendships and picking up where you left off, we think that you might be interested to know what is going on in the AAF.

"I should like you to know the activities in which the Air Forces are now participating, the needs to carry out our programs in research and development and our aims for the Air Reserve and the Air National Guard. We want you to feel that you are still On the Team. That is why we are asking you to give us your name and address at which mail can reach you, and also to keep us up to date on any changes in your home address.

"We don't want to trust our old records to send out information that we think is important to you. That is why we should like you to fill in one of the cards and send it in to us."

ANIMAL WELFARE LEAGUE LOCATED IN CHICAGO

The Illinois Citizens Animal Welfare League, Inc., located at 6224 South Wabash Avenue take care of unwanted, injured or lost animals and birds of any description. Their pet ambulance, one of five in operation, makes a trip to Tinley Park and vicinity once a week to pick up unwanted or lost animals. Every effort is made to find homes for these animals.

If an animal, dog, cat, bird, horse, cow or any other creature is in distress and needs help they will respond immediately for they maintain a 24-hour emergency service to relieve suffering animals. If any animal or bird is neglected in any manner or the cruelty laws violated they will investigate the conditions and if necessary take court action to remedy the situation. Court action is only necessary in a few cases as most offenders readily remedy the situation that is causing discomfort to their pets or farm animals.

Any person desiring them to call for a pet they are no longer able to care for should call the League at Normal 0804 or send a post card giving their name and address.

This is a most worthy organization and it is well to be informed of its location and manner of work. Animals are such faithful friends to their masters and surely the least we can do is to feed and care for them in a humane manner.

Helium Gas

From the Greek "helios," meaning sun, where earthbound man first observed it in 1868 as a bright yellow band on the spectroscopic, helium gas takes its name. Near the turn of the present century it was discovered in an earth mineral, then identified as a gas and isolated. By 1905 it had been recognized as a component of natural gas in Kansas.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 1, was:

"ANCIENT AND MODERN NECROMANCY, ALIAS MESMERISM AND HYPNOTISM, DENOUNCED"

The Golden Text was:

"There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord" (Prov. 21: 30).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord, and Satan came also among them. And the Lord said unto Satan, Whence comest thou? Then Satan answered the Lord, and said, From going to and fro in the earth, and from walking up and down in it. . . . Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (Job 1: 6, 7; 1 Pet. 5: 8).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Mind is God. The exterminator of error is the great truth that God, good, is the only Mind, and that the supposititious opposite of infinite Mind—called devil or evil—is not Mind, is not Truth, but error, without intelligence or reality. . . . We can have but one Mind, if that one is infinite. We bury the sense of infinitude, when we admit that, although God is infinite, evil has a place in this infinity, for evil can have no place, where all space is filled with God" (p. 469).

ADEQUATE TELEPHONE EARNINGS ESSENTIAL FOR GOOD SERVICE

HERE ARE PROPOSED NEW RATES

• The Illinois Bell Telephone Company on Tuesday, December 3, filed a request with the Illinois Commerce Commission for an adjustment in telephone rates that would produce an increase of about 16% in its income from intrastate Illinois business. The proposed rate increases as applied to individual subscribers vary above and below that average, depending on the class of service, types of equipment, and present base rates.

The company's decision to seek an increase in rates was put off as long as possible, and is made now reluctantly and only because of continued and progressively lowered earnings.

EXPENSES HAVE RISEN FASTER THAN INCOME

Because we're serving more telephones and handling more calls than ever, our income is up. But expenses have increased faster than income. Payroll costs are 126% higher than in 1940. Today 60 cents out of every dollar we take in goes into wages. All other costs have risen 33%.

As a result of these increased costs, our rate of earnings at the first of the year will be the lowest in the company's 65 years in business. Based on actual results for the last 7 months of our telephone operations within Illinois, we have earned less than 1½% (on an annual basis) on net telephone plant (excluding 1946 tax credit).

GOOD SERVICE AND GOOD WAGES

Good telephone service comes from good employees and good equipment. We want to go on paying good wages and improving your service. But it's evident that telephone rates, in common with most other prices, must quickly reflect the increased cost of doing business.

SOUND CREDIT NEEDED FOR JOB AHEAD

High costs and low earnings come at a time when we must go forward with a $160,000,000 service extension and improvement program required to meet the public's needs.

Provided we can attract the new money required from investors, this program will make it possible to restore telephone service everywhere to pre-war standards and to assure faster and more accurate handling of both local and long distance calls, and the introduction of new services from our scientific research laboratories that will increase the value and usefulness of your telephone.

OUR EARNINGS REQUIREMENTS ARE NOT HIGH

The earnings required to do the telephone job in Illinois are not high, but they must be adequate. Fully 40% of the revenue that would be produced by the proposed rate increases would be paid out by the Company in the form of taxes.

We believe our customers know full well what price and cost problems we have—from their own experience with rising costs. And we believe they understand why we have been forced to ask for the moderate rate increase indicated below.

them to unit charges below standard toll rates on calls to Chicago and to many points in the Chicago suburban area. This new service, offered for a rate somewhat higher than the new local rates, will afford economies for customers who make frequent toll calls.

Civil Air Patrol, Squadron 613-3
by Sandy King

Light Up and Let Down. The "final approach" to the runway in raunchy weather has long been recognized as the most critical operation in bringing in an airplane. To date, no landing light approach system has proven satisfactory, but now the Air Transport Association is taking another step toward solving this problem by installing two experimental systems of runway lights at the Newark, N. J. Airport. One system produces a beam of about 20,000 candle power. The other system, utilizing a combination of neon and flashing lights, produces an intense flash in sequence. Timed to run from the far end of the approach toward the runway, this resembles in action a flow of light. The tests, costing about $80,000 are part of an extensive research program of the ATA and will be supervised by the CAA, the Pilot's Association and representatives of the Air Lines.

Check Points: The Luscombe Airplane Corp. announces a change over in production from the standard 65 H. P. Silvalire to the new 85 H. P. Deluxe Models. Capt. J. E. Sullivan of Wright Field flew a jet P-80 from Cleveland to Evansville, Ind. and back in one hour, 51 minutes and 52 seconds, averaging a speed of 543.6 m.p.h. Delta Air Lines now have gift trip certificates, according to Vice President Laigh C. Parker. Donors may purchase the gift certificate at any Delta reservation counter, the recipient may name the destination, or cash in the entire ticket and be refunded the full amount of the fare.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

How to Stop Worrying

I guess folks in our town do about as much worrying as in yours—over housing and prices, and crops, and jobs—and the little domestic problems that are always coming up.

Dad Hoskins, who's lived to the happy age of eighty, has a simple formula for stopping worry. About every problem, he asks himself: Is there anything I can do about it? If there is, he never postpones making a decision, or taking necessary action.

If there isn't anything he can do about it, he sets aside a "worrying hour" after dinner, and gets his worrying over in one concentrated period. When that's over, he relaxes over a friendly glass of beer with Ma Hoskins—and they talk about pleasant things together, until bed-time.

From where I sit, that's as workable a formula as you could find... right down to the mellow glass of beer that seems to wink away your worries.

We go nostalgic and celebrate Christmas in the little red schoolhouse of long ago. This is a suspenseful occasion. Will you be snowbound the night of the doings? Will you remember your lines? All is revealed in "Once Upon a Christmas Time." The illustrations are by John McKee.

As Entertaining As Your Favorite Magazine
THE Service BULLETIN

Once Upon a Christmas Time

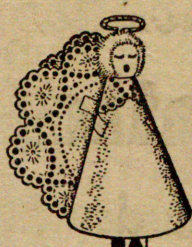

THERE was to be a Christmas doings at the little red schoolhouse. You were shocked to that you were to "speak a piece" at the jolly event. But that was the standard assignment for small fry. The older boys and girls were also given dialogues and songs. In the olden days, the schoolhouse was a place of learning and discipline. The children were taught to read, write, and do arithmetic. The schoolhouse was a place of learning and discipline. The children were taught to read, write, and do arithmetic.

As the Christmas doings drew close, your suspense became almost unbearable. You were all right but muffled your lines. You extra rehearsals in exchange. Your prayers must have been heard for the festive night was at the brilliant sky. It was decorated for the Christmas too, all hung with stars, as you de- bils rang and the runners squeaked merrily all the way to the little red schoolhouse.

We go up-to-date on the About You and Your House page with tantalizing Christmas tree and table decorations. Here are Angel Pin Ups (halo-equipped) and merry Cow Bells which revolutionize their paper drinking-cup forbears. Here too are Mr. and Mrs. Snow, a not too substantial couple really, with marshmallow antecedents. Yes, there are complete how-to-make instructions included for all decorations shown.
